How the Summit Development Program Works

We've found that associates who spend a good portion of their time in different but critical positions are happier and more engaged. This practice also promotes understanding and better communication across departments. When this variety of experience is combined with expert mentorship and a comprehensive training program, your career becomes more than a job. It's something you can be proud of.

You'll have access to both onsite and online training from leading manufacturers. You can also take the Electrical Products Education Course (EPEC).^{*} Electrical distribution leaders recognize EPEC as the cornerstone of sales and product training.

Typical Summit Development Program Path:

Over your first two years, you'll receive a foundational understanding of Summit's business model. This experience will prove invaluable throughout your sales and management career.

Our Next Great Story Could be Yours

Summit has a stringent hiring process and exacting business standards because we want every associate to exemplify the values that propelled a once small, privately held New Mexican company with five employees to one of the nation's largest electrical distributors. Today, Summit is a $500+ million company with locations in 23 U.S. cities, four industry-focused divisions, and customers worldwide.

Our commitment to your success comes with comprehensive benefits, including profit sharing, a 401(k), plus medical, dental, vision, basic life, and long-term disability insurance. Summit also provides for paid vacation, personal leave, and holidays.

EOE, including disability/vets.

^{*}EPEC is designed by the National Association of Electrical Distributors (NAED).
